BESPOKE RETAIL EXPERIENCES

Here's where to go for some of the most coveted finds in the City of Angels.

COURTESY OF IRENE NEUWIRTH

IRENE NEUWIRTH, MELROSE PLACE

MELROSE PLACE

On two leafy blocks adjacent to West Hollywood's Design District is a collection of luxury boutiques including Santa Maria Novella, Marni, Bottega Veneta, The Row, Oscar de la Renta, Monique Lhuillier, and Mansur Gavriel. Share a photo of a beloved pet (cat, dog, bunny—you name it) within the ivy-clad walls of Irene Neuwirth (ireneneuwirth.com), a fine jewelry boutique located across from the charming Alfred Tea Room, and the jeweler will create a hand-carved pet-portrait ring painted with crystal quartz and set with precious and semi-precious stones. A yellow-gold version of such a ring, with .15 diamond carats, is priced at $8,930.

VENICE

One of L.A.'s most popular walking streets, Abbot Kinney Boulevard in Venice is lined with unique boutiques, coffee shops, and restaurants. Stop in at Pretties, the home of the original '90s BabyTee, for lingerie that's handmade in L.A. and visit Strange Invisible Perfumes for pure apothecary products and fragrances that are crafted in-house. On the hunt for a custom hat? Look to Nick Fouquet (nickfouquet.com), a hatmaker with a celebrity following (think Pharrell and Madonna) who creates custom pieces at his shop, a little out-of-the-way house not far from Abbot Kinney on Lincoln Boulevard. This intimate setting attracts customers from around the world, some of whom travel to Los Angeles for the sole purpose of bringing home a one-of-a-kind Nick Fouquet hat. Choose from multiple fabrics and ribbons—nothing is off limits. Bespoke hats begin at $1,250.

WEST HOLLYWOOD

West Hollywood has several walkable shopping areas within its trendy 1.9 square miles. The Design District, located along Melrose Avenue and Beverly Boulevard near their intersections with Robertson Boulevard, houses a mix of global designer flagships including Christian Louboutin, Moschino, Stella McCartney, ALLSAINTS, and rag & bone. Les Habitudes, Hugo Boss, and Badgley Mischka are just a few of the boutiques at Sunset Boulevard's buzzy Sunset Plaza.

On eclectic Santa Monica Boulevard is Roseark (roseark.com) jewelry boutique, a celebrity favorite where the staff makes everyone feel like a VIP. Want a glass of champagne and dinner while you shop? No problem. Owner Kathy Rose will create personalized jewelry packages based on your preferences and mail purchases directly to your doorstep. She'll even come to your home to personally help you curate your jewelry box.

SHOPPING CONCIERGE

From Santa Monica to Glendale, plenty of services are available to make planning your day easier and shopping more fun. At The Grove, Palisades Village, and The Americana at Brand (all part of Caruso shopping centers), take advantage of assistance with gifting and shopping as well as travel and meal reservations.

Santa Monica Place, adjacent to the Third Street Promenade, offers a fully staffed concierge lounge and same-day delivery to local hotels for $12. It's on the second level, next to Bloomingdale's.

At the Beverly Center, which just completed a $500 million renovation, a new Room Service program has launched in collaboration with Quintessentially, a London concierge company. Members receive reservations at stylish restaurants and clubs, exclusive access to a calendar of special events, use of a private lounge, and more. Learn more on the ground level, near the La Cienega Boulevard valet.

The concierge at Westfield Century City (located across from Sephora) is on call and ready to assist with transportation, restaurant reservations, and gifting needs. International travelers can use LanguageLine, a three-way video interpretation service in more than 200 languages, including Cantonese and Mandarin. For exclusive access there's The Private Suite, dedicated to celebrity and VIP services, complete with a secured private entrance and elevator. The Private Suite provides direct entry to Century City's restaurants, theaters, and Westfield's retail experience of more than 200 boutiques.

EN ROUTE

Enhancements at Los Angeles International Airport afford passengers a chance to come and go in style.

THE PRIVATE SUITE

Transforming travel from hassle to indulgence, recent additions to security, shopping, dining, and interior spaces earned Los Angeles International Airport a place among Skytrax’s Top 10 Most Improved Airports in 2018.

STREAMLINED TRAVEL

To streamline the passenger experience while maintaining safety protocols, the Transportation Safety Administration and U.S. Customs and Border Protection have incorporated futuristic improvements into security and customs. In the Tom Bradley International Terminal (TBIT), British Airways and Lufthansa check in some flyers using a facial recognition program, the first of its kind in the U.S. The international terminal and Terminal 2 are also home to 190 Automated Passport Control machines, which speed up the customs process.

PRIVATE LOUNGES

For parties interested in an even more luxurious experience, The Private Suite, located in an exclusive A-list terminal, provides private screenings; attendants and concierges to handle baggage, ticket issues, rental cars, and more; and a three-minute BMW chauffeured ride directly to your plane.

While these upgrades mean travelers can spend less time at the airport, new lounges and fine-dining and luxury shopping choices ensure that what time is spent at LAX will be pleasurable.

Catering to affluent international travelers, upscale lounges such as the Qantas First Lounge, United Polaris lounge, Star Alliance Lounge, and American Express Centurion Lounge are designed to reduce jet lag, help passengers adjust to a change of time zone, and comfort them with amenities like private dining on fine cuisine, signature cocktails, daybeds, and showers.

SHOPPING & DINING

Westfield LAX has revamped the retail components of the terminals, adding 20 new shops, for example, to Southwest’s

Terminal 1, such as a Kiehl’s skin-care shop and a MAC cosmetics store. Offering more than the usual fast-food options, TBIT features elevated fare from L.A.-only eateries: the sophisticated Petrossian Caviar and Champagne Bar, where visitors can dine in or purchase a “caviar in the air” picnic pack for the plane; Chaya Sushi, serving handmade sushi and premade sashimi and sushi rolls to go; celebrity chef Michael Voltaggio’s ink.sack restaurant, which serves up artisanal sandwiches; LAMILL Coffee, known for its always-pressed, never-brewed joe; and Border Grill, featuring celebrity chefs Susan Feniger and Mary Sue Milliken’s renowned upscale modern Mexican cuisine.
